The Diagnostic and Psychological Services (DAPS) division provides comprehensive testing services for children and adults who have experienced difficulty learning. Psychologists administer a wide variety of assessment tools to diagnose learning disabilities and to make recommendations. We are able to evaluate a broad range of issues including social-emotional and behavior problems as well as assessment of ADD/ADHD.

Kingsbury psychologists regularly provide consultation services for families seeking further explanation of testing, review of education plans, or guidance in raising children with learning disabilities and emotional issues.
